

Questions for Homegroups

---

Psalm 131

- Why does David mention his heart, his eyes, and his understanding in verse 1? How might each of these aspects of who we are lead us astray?
- David says that he does not concern himself with things too great or wonderful for him. How do we decide what we should concern ourselves with and what we should not?
- Do you think that you tend to question things too much or too little?
- Why do you think David chooses the image of a weaned child in verse 2? What other images might he have used?
- How can we have a still and quiet soul? What has disturbed your stillness in the past? How did you deal with it? What lessons have you learned?
- What do you say to someone who said that this Psalm seems to encourage complete passivity? Should Christians be passive?
- What do you need to know about God to enable you to be content like David?

Questions for Homegroups

---

Psalm 131

- Why does David mention his heart, his eyes, and his understanding in verse 1? How might each of these aspects of who we are lead us astray?
- David says that he does not concern himself with things too great or wonderful for him. How do we decide what we should concern ourselves with and what we should not?
- Do you think that you tend to question things too much or too little?
- Why do you think David chooses the image of a weaned child in verse 2? What other images might he have used?
- How can we have a still and quiet soul? What has disturbed your stillness in the past? How did you deal with it? What lessons have you learned?
- What do you say to someone who said that this Psalm seems to encourage complete passivity? Should Christians be passive?
- What do you need to know about God to enable you to be content like David?

Questions for Homegroups

---

Psalm 131

- Why does David mention his heart, his eyes, and his understanding in verse 1? How might each of these aspects of who we are lead us astray?
- David says that he does not concern himself with things too great or wonderful for him. How do we decide what we should concern ourselves with and what we should not?
- Do you think that you tend to question things too much or too little?
- Why do you think David chooses the image of a weaned child in verse 2? What other images might he have used?
- How can we have a still and quiet soul? What has disturbed your stillness in the past? How did you deal with it? What lessons have you learned?
- What do you say to someone who said that this Psalm seems to encourage complete passivity? Should Christians be passive?
- What do you need to know about God to enable you to be content like David?